COUNTY FAIR WAS A GREAT SUCCESS!

GRASS VALLEY: The Nevada County Fair office has reported that actual spectators at the fair on Tuesday proved much more than generally anticipated. The count through the gates was 4029.

Walter J. Heineman of the Division of Fairs and Expositions spent yesterday at the fair to report on its success.

Winners among the farm center displays were announced yesterday. They are Forest Springs, first, $275; Peardale, second, $250; Banner Grange, third, $225; Nevada City center, fourth, $200; Penn Valley, fifth, $175; and Truckee Chamber of Commerce, seventh, $150. The fair closed last evening.

Nevada County turned out a huge throng at its fifth Nevada County Fair Tuesday morning. This was its first fair in Watt Park which from now on will be known as the Nevada County Fair Grounds.

Farmers were given a large number of real thrills by the beautiful displays of purebred livestock, apples in great variety, pears, grapes, plums and long rows of cages in which fine exhibits of rabbits and poultry were shown.

George Ellsworth, owner of the Barnegat Ranch, showed 20 head of his purebred Guernseys, including the state champion Barnegat Antilla II. Antilla is champion of four-year-olds for butterfat production. Quail Roost Golden Prince was another outstanding junior bull who caught the attention of spectators.

R. L. Bixler of the Clover Knoll Ranch of Grass Valley showed 15 head of his milking Shrothorns. Included among them was the junior yearling heifer champion of the Susanville and Quincy fairs.

McArthur Brothers of McArthur, California, exhibited 19 members of their purebred beef Shorthorn herd. Among them was Shasta Chief III, champion bull. Mrs. C. S. Ryan of Ranchería Angus, Andersno, Shasta County, showed 12 head of Aberdeen Angus cattle, chief of which was the grand champion bull, J. Guttridge Question I.

A. A. Bean and Sons of Marysville exhibited 24 head of Brown Swiss dairy cattle. There was included the junior female champion of the California State Fair, and the junior bull champion from the San Joaquin fair.

Six head of Herefords were shown by Cambell Farms of Modesto. One of the cows, Camp-Bell Eva Chessie, was junior champion at three fairs this season.

There were several other exhibits of purebred stock, but these were most noteworthy. Two hundred and forty head of cattle were exhibited.

Popular feature of the day was the appearance of the Grass Valley Concert Band recently reorganized by Harold George, which gave morning and afternoon concerts.

Booths and livestock displays were all located in the Pine grove in the western section of the park. Farm centers made notable showings of fruit, vegetables and canned fruit, arranged in their booths. Nevada County made their usual colorful showing in all the farm center booths. The Grass Valley Girl Scouts displayed their handicrafts in a very noteworthy booth.

Among individual displays was a booth by Mrs. J. S. Lewis in which there were 63 preserved items, not including eggs, butter, cheese and melons. All the items were produced on her Lookout Ranch.

Seen At The Fair

The sky above the fair grounds was polkadotted with gayly colored balloons that had escaped from their young owners. One little fellow whose balloon had just made an abrupt ascension reached vainly skyward to try to recover it. "Oh, Mommie," he cried, "God just took my balloon!"

Heard from the neighborhood of one of the domestic science exhibits —"Hmmph—yes, and I'll bet her old man put those up."

In back of the calf chutes a little boy about four years old surreptitiously sharing his cotton candy with an apparently appreciative horse.

In the arena there were thrills and spills. One remarkable method of riding a wild calf was shown by young Robert Hall of Grass Valley. After riding several jumps he lost his balance and grabbed the still cavorting calf by the neck. Together they rolled over in the dust. "Anyway, he's still riding it!" came an excited voice from the grandstand.

Dr. Daniel L. Hirsch, escorting his mother on a round of the exhibition booths, his trusty camera much in evidence. . . Loyle Freeman, expressing pleasure at the high degree of cooperation he received from many agencies and organizations. . . . Bill Esterly, his automobile festooned with "Esterly For Senator" placards and bumper strips. . . Harold Biggs, carrying his big folding camera, but a little dubious about the late afternoon light under the trees. . . Claude E. Clark talking (no doubt) politics. . . . Donald Robert Paine taking tickets at the side gate, resplendant in one of those Paine-ful neckties of his.

J. R. Armstrong made an unscheduled extra lap in the Pony Express Race when the curb chain on his bridle broke. Thinking there was one more lap in the race the other riders followed him on around again.

One of the men to be rescued in the Rescue Race, in an attempt to vault up into the saddle behind his would be rescuer, instead pulled that unfortunate rider off his horse.

FAIR WAS CHARMING, SAYS NUGGET READER

North San Juan, Calif.
Sept. 11, 1947

The Nugget, Dear Editor:

I wish to give you the reactions of one farmer to our Nevada County's Agricultural Fair. I have attended such exhibitions at every opportunity for the past half century and consider them a socializer and educational medium of great importance.

The setting of our fair was charming and unique. The shade afforded by the Grove of Pines and the exhibits in the open air was most pleasing in contrast with other shows of like nature given in hot, ill smelling buildings which in more than one case have been fire traps.

We have an opportunity here to create a meeting and exhibit grounds at small expense that will be a great asset to our county, for both country dwellers and urbanites alike. We are all one in our dependence upon the soil.

Smoothing of the grounds, turfing, provision for parking all cars within the enclosure, tables where lunches may be spread and seats where one may rest and visit would make a meeting place par excellence.

The purpose of such gatherings as originally concieved was educational and to stimulate a friendly rivalry that would tend to improve our livestock and the products of our fields, gardens and orchards.

The ingenuity and taste evinced by the different exhibitors gave proof that our people can and will give us a creditable exhibition with a minimum of aid.

Would it not be a good time while this year's fair is fresh in the minds of those who attended to ask for suggestions for the improvement of future events of like nature.

Yours respectfully,
R. C. Hill.

HENNESSY SCHOOL TO GET MORE ROOMS

GRASS VALLEY: The Grass Valley board of education has asked a Sacramento architectural firm, George S. Sellon and Son, to draw plans for a three class-room addition to the James S. Hennessy school. The cost the board was told, will be about $40,000.

Gilbert S. Tennis, superintendent of Grass Valley schools, stated that enrollment in the elementary grades now is 1318 and in the high school, 507. He stated that the addition of approximately 100 students during the first two weeks in the elementary grades had produced a critical situation both in the matter of rooms, and in transportation. The board asked that a survey of transportation facilities be made to determine the best allotment of buses for both elementary and high school students.

TRAIL RIDERS GIVE AN EXCITING HORSE SHOW

GRASS VALLEY: Despite handicaps of a large Watt Park arena which presented many problems to be worked out on short notice, the Gold Trail Riders, a very active group of Nevada County horsemen, put on a horse show in conjunction with the Nevada County Fair Tuesday which offered plenty of excitement and entertainment for the onlookers.

Events followed each other in rapid fire order and the Arena Clowns, "Losty" and "Frosty," Dick Lostutter and Sam Frost filled in with laugh provoking antics. Wes White, as announcer, made his usual fine performance at the microphone with the assistance of his announcer aides, Vi Anderson and Mildred Frost.

Much credit is due to the Committee Chairman and Art Director, Mitch Painter under whose direction the show was put on, and to his Arena Aides, Ed Granholm and Jerry Jarrard.

Other officials of the Gold Trail Riders committee were the timers, Barbara Lostutter and "Cookie" Jarrard, Ruth Bowles in charge of publicity, and Gateman Wayne Wainwright who put in a busy afternoon keeping the gate clear for the contestants to enter the arena.

Judges for the afternoon were D. M. Loney, Carl Tobiassen and Jess Sanford.

EARL COVEY TO WELCOME PUBLIC AT OPEN HOUSE

GRASS VALLEY: Earl Covey, well-known civic leader and business man, is holding open house in his new garage Saturday afternoon from 1 p. m. to 8 p. m. Covey's old garage underwent serious damage by burning early on the morning of July 10th. A fire that started in a second story apartment burned a major portion of the building before it was brought under control.

Covey, with characteristic energy, immediately began work on a new modern structure. He had already been in the process of creating a brand new showroom and, faced with the fire damage, he converted his plans to include a complete new building.

The new structure, comprising 6,000 square feet, has a 36-foot entrance way, 75 foot frontage and is 120 feet deep. Modern in design, the construction is of sheet aluminum and steel, virtually fireproof in the garage section.

Lighting is fluorescent throughout. The auto show room is plastered, with a knotty pine wainscoting. The home and auto supply department is completely new, including all fittings, as is the parts department and the executive office.

The most modern repair facilities have been installed. Equipment includes a hoist for lubrication and wheel balancing apparatus.

Covey plans exciting things for his Saturday open house. He will give away a complete mixing set, a Presto pressure cooker, and six free lubrication jobs. Tickets for the door prizes will be given away in the afternoon and the drawing will be at 8 p. m.

Six years ago, Covey started as Chrysler agent in the Partridge garage. In 1942, he moved to his present location, and in 1946, he purchased the building and lot from Stuart Chalmers. He has steadily increased the business and added to his line of products and services.

He is well-known for his chairmanship of the "Gold Days" pageant, one of the major successes of the Fourth celebration.

FOREST SERVICE PLANS ANTI-FIRE CAMPAIGN FOR DEER SEASON

NEVADA CITY: Keith Macdonald, fire control officer of the Tahoe National Forest at Nevada City, when interviewed today stated that "elaborate plans for a fire prevention campaign for deer season have been completed. Hunters as a group are fine woodsmen and can be fully depended upon to be extremely careful with fire while in the woods. Unfortunately though," commented Macdonald, "there are a few who call themselves hunters that are careless and it is against this minority that our campaign efforts are directed.

"All forest officers of the supervisor's staff will assist in the campaign by contacting all hunters at their camps and in the woods.

"This means that virtually the entire male personnel of the Tahoe National Forest will be patroling in the forest during the deer season. In addtion to patroling on the ground, airplane patrol will also be maintained with direct radio communication to the ground. Airplane patrol," continued Macdonald, "is very effective for detecting fires in areas blind to the lookouts.

"Hunters are urged to register upon entering the forest in order to facilitate their location in the event of important messages from home or in case of accident to the hunter himself.

"Hunters may secure campfire permits and register at the following stations in addition to the regular ranger stations: at White Cloud, approximately 11 miles east of Nevada City on highway 20; at Freeman's Crossing at the Middle Fork of the Yuba River on highway 49; and at the intersection of highway 40 and State Route No. 89 approximately one mile west of Truckee."

THURMAN TELLS OF HIS RECORD IN LEGISLATURE

COLFAX: Allen G. Thurman, Colfax publisher and sixth district assemblyman, today outlined his platform as a candidate for the seventh senatorial district at the October 14th special election. He is a registered Republican. His statement follows:

In seeking the office of state senator in the seventh senatorial district I am doing so on my record of nine years service in the state assembly. I believe that the experience I have gained during the five regular and 14 special sessions in which I have served qualify me for promotion to the upper house.

During my nine years of service as the representative of 10 mountain counties, I have supported much progressive as well as contsructive legislation. I have supported legislation in behalf of education, better pay for our school teachers, and our state employes and I have been a co-author on many bills introduced in behalf of our war veterans. Agriculture has received my support on the floor of the lower house and in the ways and means committee of which I am a member.

During the recent session I consistently supported Governor Warren's highway program, knowing that only by the passage of such legislation would the rural area of our great state receive improved and adequate highways.

Other legislation which I have supproted during the years I have served in the lower house have been the child care center program, increased aid for the blind and aged, legislation in behalf of the sportsmen, the laboring man, the mining industry, the lumber industry, the farmer, the stockman and legislation in behalf of our great natural resources of which the district I have the honor to represent is so abundantly supplied. In this connection I wish to state that I believe that the speedy completion of our great Central Valleys Project is one of the most important problems confronting us.

If elected to serve the district I will continue to support progressive and constructive legislation as I have in the past.—Sacramento Bee.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder about certain shapes
That neither walk nor run,
But stand deployed about a room
For us to sit upon.
Now some are soft becushioned things
And some are trim and neat,
Some stand with wide extended arms
Upon trustworthy feet.

To the unthinking man or woman, the subject of chairs may seem a trivial one; but chairs are of great importance to the sitting public in general and the individual sitter in particular, for man of all the animals, is the only one who can jack knife himself into a sitting posture, find a degree of comfort and relaxation.

Our primitive ancestors, sat upon the ground, later they sat upon rocks, logs and the branches of trees; their sitting habits are still followed in some parts of the world of today, but for the fortunate mortals who dwell in more advanced localities, the chair's the thing.

I wonder who first invented chairs; the first seating conveniences were no doubt crude affairs, probably milking stools, for the primordial cow must have been a fearsome beastie and squatting under her leaward side, would present danger as well as difficulty.

In the centuries that followed, chairs, benches, etc., became increasingly numerous; we find them in the annals of Persia, Syria and other ancient nations. Chairs and couches were discovered in the sepulchral chambers of the pyramids, Greece and Rome were plentifully supplied and sitters multiplied and replenished the earth.

In more modern times, Chippendale, Shereton and many another esthetics took the subject of chairs under advisement and evolved sitting conveniences that were so truly artistic that we prize them even unto this present day. Then, came the atrocities of the mid-Victorian period. I remember grand mothers chairs and "settle"-forbidding shapes of black walnut, upholstered in black horse hair and I recall that they were not easy to climb upon and that when one had succeeded in making the ascent, it was next to impossible for a small child to keep from sliding off again.

William Morris waged war against the inartistic furniture of his day and soon invented his own trick contraption, the Morris chair.

Now I wonder why so much of our most modern furniture is under slung. "I sit down on a Chesterfield," said a man of my acquaintance, "and I can't get out of the darn thing." I've heard many others make the same complaint and it seems to prove that, in some respects, this is not a man's world. Poor man, he takes a modern seat and finds his knees right up before his face. It is a sad predicament if his hostess serves scalding hot tea, for even if she provides him with a small table, he can't get his knees under it, but must reach over those intervening members, in order to partake of refreshments. He feels and looks awkward and when he attempts to rise, the cushioned seat holds him fast and only after a painful struggle, can he regain a standing position.

It's just too bad. Man is a sitting creature and his comfort should be consulted in the making of those things upon which he sits. In the face of known facts, why then is so much of our furniture underslung.

—Adeline Merriam Conner.

Football Focus

For those of you that really know the game of football, the subject of the formation used by your favorite school or professional team is an oft discussed topic. Single wing, double wing, box, short punt, T. X. Y. & W. There are many to choose from and as you know many famous coaches are identified by certain systems.

One outstanding example is Pop Warner and his famous Warner system used for decades by many coaches all over this foobtall loving country. The other day Pop made the statement that the Warner system if adopted in conjunction with the wide open style of today would, or at least could, be extremely effective.

Your writer is currently coaching a high school in the San Joaquin League and as any coach will gladly confirm one of the most popular questions that confront football tutors is, "what system or formation do you plan to use?" I personally am an exponent of the theory that it is more logical and effective to adapt your material rather than vice versa.

To execute the famous Stanford T it is desirable to have quick starting speedy backs and clever linemen. The front line bulwarks need not depend on over-powering the opponents, but should maneuver them cleverly out of position just long enough for the fast stepping glory boys to pick their hole and leave it quickly behind them. Good ball handling and deception help to set up the lineman's blocks.

The single wing, still one of the most used and effective offensive formations, is based more on power and good blocking. For the green players, and I don't mean the boys from Dartmouth, this is the simplest to teach and generally just as successful as any. Throw in a few reverses or end round and you have deception.

Razzle dazzle can be worked into any system but the double wing back formation makes possible some fancy double and triple reverses. Fans eat up such plays and the merit is there in that they often break a runner away for long gains, it executed properly. Naturally by scoring on long break away runs you save the rest of your team.

One of the most ideal offensives, that to my way of reasoning, most completely keeps the defense guessing, is one that incorporates at least three formations. Also with the selected formations possibly throw in a speed play and other elements of surprise. In this manner you can rest assured that the team you are playing will not be able to set their defense. In other words keep them guessing.

The principle explained above can also be applied to linemen. They should vary their stance and blocks so that opposing linemen cannot get set.

Well, so much for today's coaching school, no doubt many of you have no special interest in making the first team but are more interested in making money, and I don't mean on your own press. Regarding that valuable green paper, wouldn't it be nice if the local bank set up a savings method whereby over a period of five years one could save enough to pay for a fifty-yard lineseat at a Cal-Stanford battle royal.

The '49ers supported the men of the San Francisco press by defeating the L. A. Dons, but I dare say the management aged a little during the process.

It won't be long now before all my forecasts and previews will be proven or squelched, however, despite the results we are all in for a wonderful year for football, be it high school, college or professional.

The local boys of Nevada City and Grass Valley are getting their preseason work outs. Coach Abbott of the county seat community has some experienced boys that are ready, willing and capable of playing good ball. Coach Hooper lost most of his outstanding stars but has more depth to draw from and if you remember correctly the up and coming boys of last year's varsity and Junior Varsity are ready and anxious to uphold their championship standing. Again I say this year's local series will be well worth seeing.

County Historical Society Plans "Cousin Jack" Night

GRASS VALLEY: Miss Marguerite Vineyard addressed the Nevada County Historical Society at a meeting in the City Library.

"Nevada County Indians" was the subject of her talk.

President Doris Foley announced October 14 as the next meeting when the group will feature "Cousin Jack Night." E. H. Hocking of Grass Valley has been appointed as chairman. Other fall meetings include a dinner meeting in November with Dr. Robert Burns, president of the College of the Pacific, as speaker.

Elmer Stevens, former president and chairman of the museum committee, announced that over 2000 visitors have signed the register at the new museum in Nevada City which is open every Sunday and that plans are underway for a museum in Grass Valley featuring a reconstructed Joss House of the 1850 period and a mining exhibit.

He emphasized that after the close of the campaign no one may obtain a membership until the following year, and that only members will be admitted to the concerts.

This is in accordance with the "organized audience" plan that assures an ample artist budget before the performers are engaged, Bradley pointed out.

In approximately 500 cities and towns in the United States and Canada, he said, such audiences are already hearing the world's leading musicians every year with no local range in population from a few thousand to metropolitan centers of several hundred thousand.

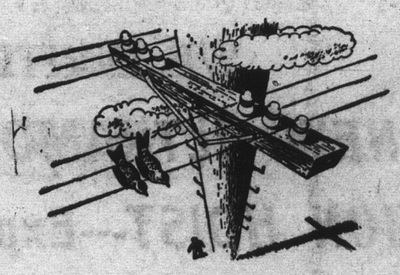
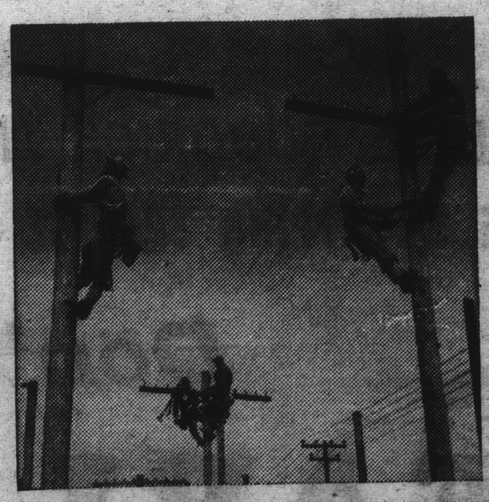
How to climb a telephone pole



One move at a time is the best advice, any telephone lineman will tell you. While you're moving your feet upward and setting your gaffs, concentrate on the job of climbing safely. After reaching the working level, place your safety strap in position around the pole and make sure it is properly engaged with the body belt. Then lean back in your safety belt and go to work.



But it takes practice . . . and here's where the telephone linemen get it—at one of our 20 special training schools on the Coast. In two years, 5,000 new craftsmen, nearly all of them war veterans, have learned the ABC's of pole climbing at these schools . . . more men than we've ever trained before in a similar period.

They've joined 20,000 plant telephone men in the big job of catching up with the West's tremendous growth. More than a million miles of wire will be placed this year as a part of that job . . . a new record. We're going ahead as rapidly as we can to bring you an expanding, improving telephone service.

New Working Dollars . . . Millions of new dollars needed to build buildings and buy new equipment to meet the public demand for more telephones and more service do not come from telephone bills. New dollars come from people who are willing to put their savings into the business. We must earn enough to attract these new working dollars.

THE - Diary of a 49'er

FROM THE BOOK EDITED BY C. L. CANFIELD

JUNE 8, 1851—After doing our washing yesterday, one flannel shirt and the dishes, and baking a batch of bread in the Dutch oven I went over to Selby Flat. There is a young fellow living there called MacCalkins, who has been to our claim several times until we got pretty well acquainted, and he told me what a jolly crowd he cabins with, what good times they have together and has asked me and Pard to come on a visit some Saturday evening. I coaxed Anderson to go along; said he did not feel like having a stag blowout; rather have a pasear with Jack over on the river, but for me to make the trip and pick up some new friends, it might cure my melancholy. Pard gets sarcastic occasionally about my sweethearts.

Well, I went and stayed until three o'clock Sunday morning and it was a noisy old time if nothing else. There are six young fellows living together in a big log cabin they have built near the flat and all are working on Brush Creek. As I remember their names, there were John Dunn, MacCalkins, Charlie Barker, Henry Shively, Delos Calkins and John Hall. They have christened their cabin Saleratus Ranch and they are certainly the wildest bunch of boys on the creek. Barker had killed a buck down on Myers ravine and they prepared a regular blowout of a supper: Baltimore cove oysters, venison steak, fried potatoes and dried apple dumplings and it was well cooked. After supper we sat under an old oak tree, smoked our pipes and exchanged experiences. They were all doing well on their claims. There was not a foot of Brush Creek that was not rich and, like everybody else, they were working to make their pile and go back to the States. I could see in spite of all their joshing that some of them were lonesome and discontented. After a while they struck up some old songs. Barker had a sweet voice and sang Scotch airs: "The Banks and Braes of Bonnie Doon," "Highland Mary" and "The Auld Wife of Alder Valley." The Calkins' swore these were too solemn and started a nigger song with the lively chorus:

Did you ever see a gin sling made out of brandy?
Johnny am a lingo lay.
Did you ever see a yaller gal suckin' lasses candy?
Johnny am a lingo lay.

We joined in until the woods rang. The bottle circulated pretty freely, but I wouldn't drink—I have not tasted liquor since I left home; told stories, some of them pretty rocky, and along about eleven o'clck they proposed to serenade the folks up on Selby Flat. Each one took a gold pan and a stick. That was the band and the boys paraded around the flat singing a lot of verses they had made up. Every miner they could find was routed out of his cabin and it was not long before there was at least a hundred in the crowd, banging on the pans and shouting the chorus:

On Selby Flat we live in style;
We'll stay right here till we make our pile.
We're sure to do it after a while,
Then good-bye to Californy.

Of course, the hotel barroom was doing a great business and some of the men got uproariously drunk. One big fellow by the name of Bob Odell began to pick on me because I would not drink and sneer at me on account of the French girl. By and by he called her a name I couldn't stand and I knocked him head over heels and would have hammered the life out of him had not the boys dragged me off, and that broke up the party. I went back to the cabin, bid them good-bye, went home, woke up Pard and told him about the things and he advised me to shake Selby Flat. Said they were good fellows, but lack of home ties and restraint made them reckless. I guess he is right—whiskey and deviltry seem to go hand in hand.

Some rich diggings have been struck over on Blue Tent above Illinois bar, where the trail crosses the river. I hear that at Gopher Point they are taking out two and three ounces to the hand. We cleaned up last week forty-two ounces, but we keep it quiet. It's no good blowing your horn when there is nothing to gain.

LOOKING AHEAD

BY GEORGE S. BENSON

President—Harding College Searcy, Arkansas

Clear the Decks

During a recent trip to the nation's capitol, I found the air filled with talk of reducing the budget. Many legislators are now becoming economy conscious. However, one item of the budget—national defense—has been given a respectable detour by many Congressmen. Although its proposed $12.7 billions represents almost one-third of the 1948 budget, most legislators seem content to economize only on the other two-thirds.

National defense has been given a "halo" of untouchability. Current thought trends believe that any reduction of defense appropriations would cripple our military and naval potential. John Q. Public will gladly pay through the nose to avoid the unpreparedness experienced in the early stages of World War II. Estimates of defense cost by the military forces are accepted without question.

Waste Hangover

However, there is every indication that wartime waste and extravagances still exist in peacetime operation of the armed forces. During the war the over-all annual cost for each fighting man was $6960. This included everything consumed in combat—ships, guns, planes and ammunition. The proposed budget calls for an annual average of $6790 per man in uniform. Only $170 less for the peacetime soldier than when he was maintained in a round-the-world conflict.

In January, 1947—the third year of peace—the Army and Navy had 1,006,577 civilian employees. Two civilians for every three soldiers. During World War II there were two civilian employees for every fifteen soldiers — this during the most wasteful war in all history. The civilian employees represent a yearly outlay of $3 billion. There should be no room in an efficient fighting force for a costly "bureaucracy."

Excess Baggage

No sane admiral or general would take his force into battle without making it as efficient as possible under existing conditions. Confusion and inefficiency within his own ranks are more deadly than any enemy. He must clear his decks of anything which will get in the way and keep the guns from firing smoothly. We must now use the same technique in peacetime to fight financial suicide.

The armed forces have everything to gain in pruning away their deadwood. The result will be a more efficient and effective defense force. Also, this will promote the confidence of a public that knows its tax money is being wisely spent. A future forced cut might come at a time to really cripple defense operations.

Fighting Weight

It is not a matter of cutting appropriations that would result in a weakened Army and Navy. The reverse is actually true. First, efficiency must be created within the operations themselves. Then the path is open for expenditures more in line with sane economy. Efficiency of operation, public confidence, and sensible financing all depend upon each other. None can stand alone.

This is one of the first steps in bringing our wayward economy back to earth. In our zeal to spend recklessly for national protection, we should acknowledge the presence of more than one type of enemy. It is sure folly to pour an endless stream of money into a wasteful machine to protect ourselves from an outside aggressor, only to result in financial chaos within our own borders. A good deal of economizing can be done within the services without crippling our defense.

LOCAL TAX REVENUE HIGHER

NEVADA CITY: Revenue receipts of the city of Nevada City for fiscal 1945-46 totalled $29,703, compared with $24,840 for fiscal 1944-45, California Taxpayers' association said today, making public its study of revenue sources of California cities.

Of the city's 1945-46 revenue, $17,799 came from the general property tax, $4,173 from licenses and permits, $5,455 from subventions and grants, and $2,276 from other revenues.

Two cities in the county showed higher receipts for 1945-46 than for 1944-45, the association said. They are Grass Valley and Nevada City.

USE BRAKES PROPERLY

"The best of brakes in perfect adjustment sometimes can be dangerous if used improperly," declares Bert Stewart, Jr., public safety director of National Automobile Club. "Brakes never should be applied any harder than necessary to make the required stop. Hazards should be noted while they are far ahead and decisions made promptly. If a stop seems necessary, act immediately. If it can possibly be avoided, never jam the brakes down hard and hold them there.

"It is best to stop the car with a series of impulses in diminishing cadence. Particularly on wet or slippery roads, the brakes should not be suddenly applied unless quite necessary. And if the car goes into a spin, it is the accelerator, not the brakes, that will straighten it out. Never brake in the middle of a turn. Brake before reaching the turn and then accelerate slightly to round it. This will prevent the car from sliding into the curbstone or gutter."

National forests contributed about five per cent of the total lumber cut in 1939.
